Editorial Review

The Looking for work in India guide tells you about CV writing, recruitment practice, country profile and management differences. It's the first step on your route to success abroad. Because, an international career needs more than just a mere CV translation!

Country Profile

- India is the second country in the world that passed one billion mark of population.
- Federal republic system is adopted by India with New Delhi as the capital city.

Work permits in India

- You need an employment visa to work and open a bank account in India.
- All Employment Visa holders must register for a resident permit within 14 days of the arrival.

Writing a CV and application letter in India

- Personal information, educational background and employment history should be included in the CV.
- The letter itself should be very brief and written in a very polite and formal style.

The application procedure in India

- Your first interview may be the introduction to a series of interviews with senior personnel.
- Always bring copies of documents, like educational degrees and visa documents, to the interview.

Management culture in India

- Meetings are generally unstructured and a lot of time is spent on networking and personal conversations.
- Indians prefer personalized work relationship and would work more effectively in a person-to-person role than a general overall work role.
