Editorial Review

The Looking for work in New Zealand guide tells you about CV writing, recruitment practice, country profile and management differences. It's the first step on your route to success abroad. Because, an international career needs more than just a mere CV translation!

Country Profile

- Wellington is the capital city of New Zealand.
- There are two languages official language in New Zealand, English and Maori.

Work permits in New Zealand

- Government of New Zealand uses point system as consideration to obtain a work-as well as a residence permit.
- If you want to know more about the point system use in New Zealand, Looking for Work in New Zealand guide is your ultimate tool to find out about it!

Writing a CV and application letter in New Zealand

- Use power words and action verbs in your letter and resume.
- In the last paragraph of your application letter, you are expected to be assertive, but not too pushy.

The application procedure in New Zealand

- Speculative phone call and networking are good ways of finding a job.
- Many people are prepared to help in your search for a job. However, remember you are networking for information rather than for employment.

Management culture in New Zealand

- New Zealand is a rather classless society with flat organisational structures, without the presence of hierarchy.
- The business culture in New Zealand is egalitarian. Because of that New Zealanders support collaborative and participative management style.
